Global Health Clinical Research Day

Thursday, 2025/06/12, 08:00

The Global Health Day at the University of Bern seeks to raise awareness about critical health issues impacting people worldwide. It provides a platform to address global health challenges, highlight the importance of equitable access to care, and inspire collective efforts toward better health outcomes for all, particularly in underserved communities.

The event encourages the sharing of innovative projects, fosters networking opportunities, and promotes knowledge exchange across disciplines, creating a space for collaboration, idea-sharing, and inspiring future progress in global health.
